Sister School Global Initiative

The Sister School Global Initiative (SSGI) is a comprehensive cultural awareness program for high school girls designed to support and expand students’ path for personal, academic, professional, and leadership growth as they participate in activities that increase their understanding of diverse world cultures. Students will enjoy valuable friendships, have authentic experiences, prepare for future global leadership roles, and collaborate on projects.

- Western High School is partnered with Aje Comprehensive High School located in Lagos, Nigeria

Women Who Rock Leader-to-Leader Network

IWTT’s Women Who Rock Leader-to-Leader Network offers valuable connections by linking Western students to a network of women leaders that care about the personal, academic, and professional development of girls. They will support the leadership development of students by engaging their expertise to connect with students as role models and open opportunities through their international networks.

Dr. Brenda Morant is an alumna of Western High School and is the Founder of the International Women's Think Tank (IWTT). She serves on the board of Western's High School Foundation and brought IWTT's principles of global understanding and international contacts to her work on the WHSF Board. Connecting HRH Princess Dr. Moradeun Ogunlana, President, African Women Health Project International to the Board for a series of conversations that resulted in the partnership between Western High School and Aje Comprehensive High School.

According to HRH Princess Dr. Moradeun Ogunlana, "We believe individual relationships, sharing cross-cultural experiences and perspectives, are the key to personal maturity and women's professional ascension...and as importantly, to a more harmonious world." As evidence of the power of individual relationships, her longstanding friendship with Dr. Morant is the basis for the implementation and ongoing success of the Sister Schools program.
